A word from Oxfam…

The young people of today will grow up to be the citizens of the future: but what that future holds for them is not yet clear.

The world they live in is one of tremendous opportunity – but also one of increasing inequality. While many people enjoy a higher standard of living than ever before many others … face life without enough to eat, without a home, without freedom from violence, without a way of earning a living, without a home, without a say in their future.

Oxfam believes that eradication of poverty is the only way to ensure a secure and sustainable future for everyone. If people in out country or in other countries are poor, we are a part of their problem. As global citizens of the future, we hope you people can become part of the solution.

Source: Oxfam http://www.oxfam.org.uk